

The Dokumentation Obersalzberg is a public institution of the Berchtesgadener Landesstiftung.

The following Rules of Conduct apply to all visitors:

1. Visitors must wear clothing appropriate to the historical significance of the exhibition. Inappropriate clothing is, in particular, that which would generally be understood as a symbol of a right-wing extremist attitude. Equally inappropriate is the wearing of clothing on which badges or emblems with a right-wing extremist reference are visible.
2. Visitors must behave appropriately in accordance with the historical theme of the exhibition. Inappropriate are, in particular, behavior and remarks which glorify, make light of or deny the National Socialist regime or its crimes. Equally inappropriate is the display of tattoos which could be understood as symbols of a right-wing attitude. Any infringement of these rules will lead to the initiation of a criminal complaint pursuant to § 123 of the Criminal Code.
3. The Dokumentation Obersalzberg arranges guided tours through the exhibition. Guided tours offered by other parties are only admissible with previous written permission.
4. In the case of particularly large crowds the personnel is authorized to temporarily close the museum to visitors for security reasons.
5. The admission tickets entitle the bearer to a one-time admission and are non-transferable. The tickets lose their validity once their holders have left the museum.
6. The only access to the museum is through the main entrance. Visitors have to leave at the latest by the end of the valid opening times.
7. Children under the age of 12 must be accompanied by an adult. The accompanying person(s) must ensure that the children behave in a quiet and orderly fashion. In principle, a visit to the Dokumentation Obersalzberg is not recommended for children under the age of 12.
8. Visiting school classes are subject to supervision by their accompanying teachers.

9. Dogs and other animals may not be taken into the museum.
10. We do not accept liability for items left in the cloakroom.
11. The elevator may only be used by wheelchair users, physically disabled persons and for transporting baby buggies and strollers or with the express permission of the supervisory staff.
12. Smoking is not permitted. Eating and drinking is only possible in individual cases in the expressly approved rooms. Cell phones or mobiles must be turned off out of consideration for other visitors.
13. Do not touch the exhibition objects and showcases. Staff instructions must be followed. If these rules of conduct are violated, in particular no. 1 and 2, the personnel in the Dokumentation Obersalzberg, have the right to deny or prevent access to the museum. In such cases visitors have no claim to a refund of the ticket price.
14. Visitors are liable for all direct and secondary damage caused by them to the building and to immovable as well as movable furnishings. Parents are liable for their children.
15. The rules of conduct enter into force on January 1, 2015.
